Army Stabilizes Additional Assignments;
Most 3-Yr Tours Go To Field Grade Officers

The Army is taking steps to give greater assignment stability to its officers and enlisted men.

New regulations which currently are being put into effect, establish 56 general assignment areas under which tours will be stabilized—38 for officers and 18 for enlisted men.

The program is in line with recommendations made during the last Congress by the House Appropriations Committee. The Congressional group said military men and women too often are hardly "permitted to become settled" in new jobs "before being ordered to another duty assignment." The Committee urged more three-year tours of duty.

The new Army program sets up thousands of three-year tours for field grade officers as well as a large number for company grade officers, warrant officers and enlisted men.

A few assignments call for four-year

Pentagon Tells How Insurance
Is Affected By Survivor Act

How military insurance policies are affected by the Survivor Benefits Act is told in a new Pentagon pamphlet.

The booklet will begin going to the field late this month.

Here is what it will tell Service families about their present, past and future insurance policies.

Persons on active duty since 16 Sept. 1940 and through 25 April 1951 could take out National Service Life Insurance (NSLI). Before 15 Sept. 1940, members could take out U. S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI).

Since 27 June 1950 members have been covered while on active duty by The Servicemen's Indemnity Act of 1950; which provides $10,000 indemnity or "free insurance" less any Government life insurance in force. Under the new Survivor Benefits Act, effective 1 Jan. 1957, this

Pentagon Unfolds Medical Care Program;
Plan Calls For "Free Choice" Of Facilities

Final details of the Pentagon blueprint for Dependent Medical Care were due to be worked out today, 8 Sept., at a top-level Defense Department meeting.

Wives and dependent children of Servicemen will become eligible for medical care by civilian physicians and for hospitalization in civilian facilities under the $76 million program which goes into effect on 8 December.

It is expected that the Pentagon will approve "free choice" of facilities when the plan is unfolded.

This would mean that wives and children could go to either military or civilian doctors for certain types of treatment and to either military or civilian hospitals.

The Government will pick up the tab for all of the charges made by the civilian physician and for all but a small portion of the hospital bill. Dependents will pay the first $25 of the civilian hospital charges (for each admission) or the uniform inpatient charge ($1.75) which military dependents pay in Service facilities multiplied by the number of days hospitalized, whichever is the greater.

The right to "free choice" of physicians and facilities is included in the Dependent Medical Care Act but could be limited by action of the Secretary of Defense in order to assure full use of military facilities.

A Pentagon inter-Service committee has drafted recommendations, however, which call for no initial restrictions on freedom of choice. If it turns out that military hospitals are not being used to the optimum under the new plan, then some restrictions may be imposed at a later date.

SUCH RESTRICTIONS would require dependents to use Government facilities if the Serviceman is assigned to an installation where adequate military or Public Health facilities are available. Those without immediate access to Government facilities could continue to go to civilian physicians and hospitals.

Today's meeting will bring together the members of a Defense Department Advisory Committee made up of representatives of the Medical profession, the health and insurance organizations and representatives of the Services, who will be presented with the Pentagon plan for putting the new law into operation.

A Defense Department spokesman said no objections are expected to the Pentagon blueprint and that a SecDef directive should go out soon after the meeting authorizing the Army to begin signing contracts for the medical care program. The Army is administering the

Bermuda To Oklahoma In 3 Hrs., 8 Mins. Wins GE Trophy For Maj. Joe Schreiber

WILL ROGERS FIELD
OKLAHOMA CITY

MAJ. Joseph Schreiber, USAF, of the 22d Bomb Wing, March AFB, Calif., won the General Electric Trophy event here 2 Sept. by flying his B-47 jet bomber from Kindley AFB, Bermuda, to the National Aircraft Show here in three hours eight minutes and 43.6 seconds.

His official average speed for the 1,900-mile run was 601 miles per hour.

Major Schreiber was aircraft commander and other members of his crew were: Capt. Denis O. Peterson, USAF, pilot, and Maj. Christian J. Luecke, USAF, observer.

Second place in the race was taken by the B-47 of which Lt. Col. John C. Lewis, USAF, was aircraft commander, Capt. John D. Roche, USAF, pilot, and Lt. Col. Oscar L. Black, USAF, observer. They are from the 301st Bomb Wing, Barksdale AFB, La.

The second plane's average speed was 600.058 mph.

The third plane's crew was Capt. C. L. Porter, USAF, aircraft commander, Capt. R. W. Cain, USAF, pilot, and Capt. Sam Allison, USAF, observer. They are from the 310th Bomb Wing, Smoky Hill AFB, Kans. Their average speed was 593.602 mph.

Less than one minute separated the time of the first and third planes.

All three planes far exceeded the former GE trophy record of 589.294 mph set last year on a 2,200-mile course from March AFB, Calif., to Philadelphia.

All three contestants flew Boeing B-47s powered by General Electric J-47 jet engines.

Talking to newsmen after the race, Major Schreiber's first words were praise for his fellow crew members and ground crewmen, making special mention of his crew chief, T/Sgt. James Richardson, USAF, who, he said, "spent 21 of the 24 hours before we took off checking the plane."

Major Schreiber, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., entered the service in 1942, going directly into pilot training. He served in the European Theater during World War II as P-51 pilot. He flew 33 missions winning The Air Medal with three clusters and a Purple Heart. He has headed his present crew for more than three years, and they have logged more than 1,000 hours as a team.

The rules of the race prohibited aerial refueling and required that each aircraft must arrive at the finish with a minimum of 15,000 pounds of fuel reserve.

The General Electric Trophy was presented to Major Schreiber in a formal ceremony by George E. Fouch, general manager of the GE jet engine plant near Cincinnati, Ohio.

GERMANS VISIT 82D

Eight high ranking West German Army officers visited the Home of the Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N. C., recently to watch the training of America's rugged 82d Airborne Division paratroopers.

Brig. Gen. Kurt Brandstaedter, commander of Activation Headquarters North and his party visited the 82d Airborne Division Marshalling area to watch the process of training a class of jumpmasters.

Accompanying Brig. Gen. Brandstaedter were Col. Fritz Reinhardt, chief of the Infantry Section; Col. Walter Gerlicke, chief of the planning staff of the Airborne Troop School; Col. Kurt Gieser, chief of the Field Artillery Section of the Army; Lt. Col. Martin Burh, chief of the Armor Section; Lt. Col. Christian Neckenauer, chief of the Anti-Tank Section; Maj. Franz Winter, chief of the Armored Reconnaissance Section and Maj. Karl Reinhard V. Schultendorff, deputy of the Armored Infantry Section of the West German Army. Maj. Frank F. Rathbun, U. S. Army Tour Director, accompanied the West German visitors.

Army Families Get 25,000 New Homes Under Expanded Capehart Program

Construction of approximately 25,000 new housing units for Army families will start soon under authority of the Capehart Housing Law.

The Army said this week that more than 20,000 of the units will be started during the next 10 months. This will be the largest number of housing units ever constructed within this period for Army housing.

Changes in the Capehart program which were approved by the second session of the 84th Congress raised the unit cost of military housing projects from $13,500 to $16,500.

Four Army projects totalling 1,395 houses have been approved already and construction is expected to begin shortly. They include 270 units at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.; 600 units at Fort Eustis, Va.; 500 units at Fort Lee, Va.; and 25 units at the Richmond Quartermaster Depot, Va.

In addition, bids have been invited on 14,975 other units and the projects are expected to be cleared for contracting procedures within the near future.

Approximately 4,850 units will have to be completely redesigned to take advantage of the new higher unit cost, and another 3,780 are in the design stage.

Among projects being redesigned as a result of the new unit cost limit is one for 500 units at Fort Carson, Colo.

Opening bids on the Fort Carson dwellings had been scheduled for 24 August but were temporarily postponed in order to take advantage of the benefits of the $16,500 unit ceiling. Col. John E. Johnson, Carson's post engineer, said improvements would include basements where none were called for before, oak flooring instead of asphalt tile, and garages.

Airborne Assn. Asks Trooper Pay Boost, Removal Of Army Plane Weight Limitations

New airborne incentive pay scales comparable to those of Air Force flight crews and Navy submarine crews received the backing this week of the Airborne Association.

Meeting in convention in Washington, D. C., over the Labor-Day week-end, the Association called for new pay for airborne troops "graduated according to pay grades and time in service."

Another resolution asks for removal of the current 5,000 pound weight restriction on Army aircraft.

Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, USA-Ret., was reelected President of the Association.

New directors are George W. Dunaway, Sergeant Major of the 187th Airborne Infantry Combat Group; Robert H. Wendelken of the 17th Airborne Division Association; Herman Graber, veteran of the 504th Airborne Infantry Regiment; Robert H. Rutan, veteran of the 300th S. F. Reserve Unit; Lt. Col. John L. Klingenhagen, on duty at the Pentagon; Maj. Gen. Gerald G. Higgins, USA-Ret., and Capt. T. B. Boltinghouse, 506th Airborne Infantry Regiment.

Maj. Gen. Cleland

The Association closed its Second Annual Convention by adopting a new objective to "encourage concerted action among all airborne associations and societies in cooperation with the Association of the United States Army on matters considered appropriate to improve the capability, efficiency, esprit de corps, skills and utilization of the Airborne for the greater effectiveness of the Army as a whole."

Tentative plans to implement this objective contemplate conducting the next quarterly meeting of the Association's Board of Directors in Washington, D. C., concurrently with the annual meeting of the Association of the U.S. Army.

Presidents of the major unit airborne associations will be invited to the meeting as guests of the Association so that both the smaller units and the parent organization may demonstrate their active support of the Army Association.

In addition to the resolutions calling for increased Airborne pay and elimination of the weight restrictions on Army aircraft, the Association also resolved to:

- Support efforts for the retention of the traditionally distinctive uniform of airborne troops by authorizing distinctive headgear and parachute boots for wear with the new Army green uniform.
- Urge elevation of the standards for entry and retention on duty in airborne units to make them thoroughly "elite" and thus encourage Regular Army personnel to volunteer for airborne as a career.
- Create and erect a memorial to the

ANG Tries New Scoring System At Annual Meet

The Air National Guard has adopted a new method of scoring air-gunnership championships.

The system, which distributes responsibility for a team's performance among ground crews, will be used at the Guard's annual fighter and light-bomber meets to be held during the week starting 10 September at Natrona County Airport, Casper, Wyo., and Gulfport, Miss.

Support crews of each team will be allotted approximately 20 per cent of the total possible points. Penalty points will be deducted for mission "aborts" or incomplections resulting from aircraft or engine trouble, radio or armament malfunctions, and for each round of ammunition not expended on a mission.

combat dead of the Airborne.

The latter objective will be launched with a design competition for the memorial and solicitation of contributions from the million troopers who have served in the Airborne since 1940.

A highlight of the three-day convention included a Memorial Luncheon at which unit colors and the national standard were presented to the RAKKASAN Chapter 187th Airborne Infantry Combat Group, Fort Campbell, Ky. Sergeant Dunaway accepted the colors for the 187th.

The convention closed with a grand banquet, floor show and ball at the Willard Hotel in Washington on 2 Sept., with Assistant Secretary of Defense Clifford C. Furnas (R&D) as the guest of honor.

Army Helicopter Pilots Given DFC's At Airshow

WILL ROGERS FIELD
OKLAHOMA CITY

FOUR Army aviators who this Summer established new world helicopter records were awarded Distinguished Flying Crosses during ceremonies opening the Army portion of the National Aircraft Show here.

They were Lt. Col. Harry L. Bush, Maj. William C. Dycinger, Capt. Claude E. Hargett, and Capt. Ellis D. Hill.

General Willard G. Wyman, USA, Commanding General, Headquarters, Continental Army Command, presented the medals, and Maj. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, USA, Chief, Army Aviation Directorate, Office of the Chief of Staff, Department of the Army, read the citations.

Bush and Dycinger's awards were for the new distance record they set 11 Aug. by flying 1199.07 miles non-stop in 11 hours and 58 minutes between two points in New Jersey.

Hargett and Hill were cited for new speed records for closed circuit courses established 12 July. The courses bordered the south Connecticut shore and the records were: 141.9 miles an hour over a 100 kilometer course; 136 miles an hour for the 500 kilometer dash; and 132.6 miles per hour for the 1,000 kilometer run.

All of the tests were conducted under the supervision of the Army Aviation Test Board at The Army Aviation Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala., a part of General Wyman's command, which includes all training testing and development for the Army. Col. Robert R. Williams, USA, is president of this board.

Trustees Appoint Robert Hyde Ames As Journal's Publisher Effective 1 Sept.

Appointment of Mr. Robert Hyde Ames, of Washington, D. C., as publisher of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL has been announced in Washington, D. C., (September 1, 1956) by the Trustees of the John Callan O'Laughlin Trust.

Mr. Ames began his new duties 1 Sept., simultaneously with the 93d anniversary of THE JOURNAL.

Mr. Ames joins THE JOURNAL from the publishing and consulting firm of Boyce Morgan Associates, of Washington, where he handled circulation promotion for the company's publishing accounts, one of which was THE JOURNAL. Before World War II he was Vice President of the Chester C. Moreland Advertising Agency of Cincinnati, where he handled promotion for the Cincinnati Times-Star. He came to Washington during the war as a Naval communications officer.

Following Military service, Mr. Ames became advertising manager of Capital Airlines and subsequently joined the staff of the airlines' advertising agency as liaison executive. He was graduated from the University of Cincinnati with the class of 1933. He resides with his wife and three daughters near Alexandria, Va.

LeRoy Whitman is editor of THE JOURNAL and Dorothy Cone Brown is general manager. Mr. Whitman has been with THE JOURNAL for 27 years and Mrs. Brown for 31 years.

THE JOURNAL has been without a publisher since the death in 1949 of its then owner, Col. John Callan O'Laughlin. Colonel O'Laughlin left control of THE JOURNAL to a Board of Trustees composed of the members of the executive committee of the Gridiron Club. Current members of the John Callan O'Laughlin Trust are: Roscoe Drummond, Marquis Childs, Lyle C. Wilson, Walker S. Buel, Benjamin McKelway, Arthur Sylvester, Richard L. Wilson and Marshall McNeil.

The Trustees as stockholders elect the Board of Directors for THE JOURNAL. Present members of the Board are: Richard L. Wilson, President, Joseph P. Tumulty, Jr., Bernard Kilgore, LeRoy Whitman and Dorothy Cone Brown. Current plans call for the election of Mr. Ames as Executive Vice President of the Board.

THE JOURNAL was founded 93 years ago on 29 Aug. 1863, just a few weeks after the battle of Gettysburg. It has never missed publication of a single weekly issue since, nor has it materially changed its subscription price, its format or its editorial policies.

Its founder and first publisher was Col. William Conant Church, chief of war correspondents for the N. Y. Times, and member of a family prominent in journalism. Church's father was editor of the N. Y. Chronicle, and there were 18 other editors in the family.

Colonel O'Laughlin, a nationally known newspaper correspondent and for many years a writer for THE JOURNAL, bought the publication in 1925 after serving as Assistant Secretary of State under President Theodore Roosevelt, and as Colonel in World War I. Under the terms of his will, THE JOURNAL's trustees serve without compensation and allocate all profits that accrue from their trusteeship to educational and charitable projects.

of the great world powers, and a re-evaluation of the strength and growth potential of even the most unadvanced nations."

"While planning and operating this mighty deterrent force remain the responsibility of military strategists and tacticians, its resourceful support stems from an unsurpassed industrial ingenuity and versatility. Intensive research and development efforts of private industry, coupled with mass production know-how, effectively meet the current aircraft demands and project increased capabilities in terms of weapon system requirements for three, five, ten years into the future."

BACHELOR FOR BERLIN

Selecting officers and NCO's for assignment to Berlin, the Army is placing a premium on bachelors.

That's because current housing limitations and policy decisions related to the unique situation of that command limit to 650 the number of families in that city.

But, however careful the Army is to send large number of bachelors to Berlin, carefully developed logistical and tactical plans frequently are upset. During the last year, 453 Army bachelors got married in Berlin.

Next week's issue of THE JOURNAL will carry an on-the-scene report from Berlin.

Capt. Fernandez Sets 666.661 MPH Mark For Bendix Trophy Race In Super Sabre

WILL ROGERS FIELD
OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

CAPT. Manuel J. "Pete" Fernandez, jr., USAF, brought victory to his 413th Fighter-Day Group, George AFB, Calif., in the Bendix Trophy Race at the National Aircraft Show here.

Landing with a bare 20 gallons of fuel left in his tanks, Captain Fernandez flew his North American F-100C Super Sabre from George AFB to the finish line here in a total elapsed time of one hour 40 minutes and 38.8 seconds.

His average speed of 666.661 miles per hour broke all previous records for the 25-year-old speed classic. In fact all six of this year's contestants exceeded the previous record of 616.208 MPH for the race set by Capt. E. W. Kenny, USAF, flying from Edwards AFB, Calif., to Dayton, Ohio, in 1954 in a Republic F-84F.

Although this year's rules for the race permitted aerial or ground refueling, all of the contestants elected to use auxiliary tanks. Captain Fernandez used in-board wing tanks carrying 275 gallons each. He jettisoned them near Prescott, Ariz.

The rules of the race required the contestants to have adequate fuel on landing to taxi to their designated parking area before engine shutdown. The winner, as did most of the others, complied with a bare 20 gallons remaining.

Second place went to Capt. Robert A. Madden, USAF, operations officer of the 34th Fighter-Day Squadron, also of George AFB. His average speed was 556.250 mph.

Third place went to Capt. Archie T. Iddings, jr., USAF, of the 723d Fighter-Day squadron, Foster AFB, Tex., with an average speed of 655.844.

The remaining three contestants with their average speeds were:

Capt. Aubrey C. Edinburg, USAF, operations officer 450th Fighter-Day wing, Foster AFB—647.834 mph.

Lt. John R. Niemela, USAF, 434th Fighter-Day Squadron, George AFB—647.532 mph.

Capt. Robert A. Farnsworth, USAF, 450th Fighter-Day Squadron, Foster AFB—645.787 mph.

General O. P. Weyland, USAF, Commander of the Tactical Air Force, who was on hand to witness the finish, congratulated all the pilots on their fine performances.

The winning pilot is the son of Col. Manuel J. Fernandez, sr., USAF, and Mrs. Fernandez. Colonel Fernandez is Deputy Chief of Staff, 18th Air Force, Donaldson AFB, S. C. Young Fernandez was born 19 April 1925 in Key West, Fla. and entered the service in 1943.

He served in the Korean War from September 1952 to May 1953 and in that short period put in 193 combat hours and was credited with 14½ MIG-15 kills, plus two damaged.

He is Assistant Operations Officer of the 413th Group at George AFB where he has been stationed since November 1953. His wife, and their seven-month old daughter, Holly Maria, live in nearby Apple Valley.

Army Copter Stays Aloft 57 Hrs. 50 Min. At National Air Show; Change Pilots in Air

WILL ROGERS AIR FIELD
OKLAHOMA CITY

An Army Helicopter stayed in the air during the entire three-day period of the National Aircraft Show here, setting a new record of 57 hours and 50 minutes in the air. Actually, it could have stayed up indefinitely longer.

The Army's Bell H-13 helicopter took off early on the opening day of the show, 1 Sept. and stayed up until after the show closed the evening of 3 Sept. It took off in a roped off area in full view of the spectators. Its ground to air refueling, and changing of pilots also was accomplished in view of the crowd. In the air, the copter shuttled back and forth over a path roughly between the field and Norman, Okla.

Special announcements were made on 2 Sept. when the copter passed the Army's own earlier record of 31 hours, 47 minutes (see THE JOURNAL of 1 Sept. page 11).

Pilots who took turns flying were CWO Alva Anderson, CWO Bert E. Ratliff, CWO Joseph A. Pfluger, CWO Walter S.

Catlow and WO George W. Cox.

Minor adjustments and maintenance was provided by hoisting one of the ground crew members aboard. They were SP1c Robert L. Carr, SP3c Joseph J. Collandra, PFC Roland A. Pinard, Pvt. Edward R. Stapleton and Pvt. Kenneth W. Snedeker.

Pilots flew in shifts, the new going aboard while the aircraft was at hover, taking the controls and maintaining the hover while the retiring pilot jumped out. Ground-to-air refueling was accomplished at hover also.

The aircraft carried an additional gas supply in sealed foam-spray tank of the type used by commercial crop-dusters. This allowed the pilots to fly longer without coming in for refueling.

The purpose of the test, the Army said, was to prove that the helicopter can be operated, if necessary, for continued periods of time without ground maintenance.

Col. Robert R. Williams, USA, President, the Army's Aviation Test Board, The Army Aviation Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala., supervised the test.

Lt. Grosshuesch Wins North American Trophy In 1,198-Mile Flight From Carrier

WILL ROGERS FIELD
OKLAHOMA CITY

Lt. (jg) David K. Grosshuesch, USN, of Squadron VF-24, won the new North American Trophy at the National Aircraft Show 1 Sept. when he flew his FJ-3 Fury from the deck of the USS Shangri-La off the coast of northern Mexico 1,198 miles to the finish line here in two hours 13 minutes and 38.6 seconds.

His average speed was 537.849 miles per hour.

Right behind him for second place was Cdr. John H. Boyum, USN, Commander of Group 2, whose average speed was 537.032 mph.

Two other contestants were Lt. (jg) John A. Dickson, USN, of VF-24, with an average speed of 524.410 miles per hour, and Comdr. William L. Adams, USN, of VF-24, at 524.149 mph.

All contestants flew the North American Fury Three powered by Wright J-65 engines. The pilots were from Navy fighter Squadron 24 based at Moffett Field, Calif. They flew without refueling and landed with enough gas for 250 miles more.

The event was the first of three such flights originating from the deck of the Shangri-La as it steamed northward toward the Canadian border near Puget Sound.

The operations were designed to demonstrate the Navy's capability to conduct long-range strikes from carriers.

SAC Outlaws Wars, Attaches Are Told

OKLAHOMA CITY

THE tremendous striking power of the Strategic Air Command poses such an effective counter-threat to aggression that "full scale war is virtually ruled out as a possible method of achieving world-wide ideological or territorial gains," Lt. Gen. C. S. Irvine, USAF, declared here 31 Aug.

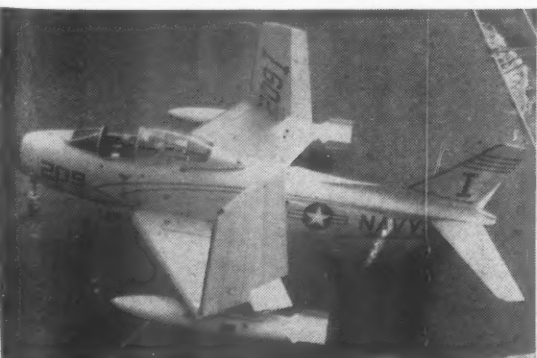

Lt. Gen. Irvine

Speaking at a dinner given for some 60 foreign air attaches, including some from Iron Curtain countries, who came here to witness the air show, the Air Force Deputy Chief of Staff Materiel, declared that SAC, operating from a world-wide network of bases "is continually capable of matching aggression with massive air-atomic retaliation."

"In specific terms," he said, "air-atomic weapon systems have progressed in destructive capabilities to such proportions that full scale war is no longer a logical device for attaining national objectives."

Air power, General Irvine said, "has led to a reassessment of the future prospects

FJ-3 FURY JET begins its journey up to the flight deck. The Fury Three is in production at Columbus Division of North American and is on first line duty with Navy and Marine fighter squadrons at home and abroad. It is powered by the Wright J-65 engine and is capable of combat at near sonic speeds.

U. S. Army

Shift Army Generals

Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, Commanding General of the 82d Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C., will take up new duties on 1 Oct. in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations. His successor at Bragg has not been named.

Brig. Gen. Jack W. Schwartz, Chief of the Professional Division, Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., has been assigned to Headquarters, Madigan Army Hospital, Fort Lewis, Wash. He will report to his new post this month.

Maj. Gen. William T. Sexton, Deputy The Inspector General, U.S. Army, Washington, D. C., was retired on 31 Aug. after more than 32 years of active Army service.

100% Missile Artillery Years Away, Class Told

Equipment used as training aids in the Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile School at Ft. Bliss, Tex., is valued at more than $110 million, Maj. Gen. Robert J. Wood, USA, commandant, told the new class of Antiaircraft Artillery officers entering a basic course at the School.

"You may wonder why so many of you are being trained in the technique of firing cannon rather than guided missiles," General Wood said. "For an indefinite period in the future, there will still be a great dependence upon conventional weapons which are highly effective with-in our planned capabilities. These are the weapons with which our troops are armed and they are ready and able to do the job against any enemy today. . . . We are not yet a completely missile artillery and it will be some years before we are."

Gen. Michaelis Goes To D.C. As Hill Liaison

Brig. Gen. John H. Michaelis, USA, Commanding General of the Southern European Task Force, with Headquarters at Leghorn, Italy, will become Army Chief of Legislative Liaison, effective 1 November.

A 1936 graduate of West Point, General Michaelis has served in his present assignment since September 1955.

During WWII, he commanded the 502d Parachute Infantry Regiment and served as Chief of Staff of the 101st Airborne Division. Following the war he was Senior Aide to Army Chief of Staff General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and later was Department of the Army liaison officer with the House Armed Services Committee.

General Michaelis was graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College in 1949, and commanded the 27th Infantry (Wolfhound) Regiment in Korea. During the Korean conflict he was promoted to brigadier general and became Assistant Commander of the 25th Infantry Division.

Prior to his present assignment, he served as Commandant of Cadets at the U. S. Military Academy.

Mobile Forces Concept

Integration of the mobile forces concept of organization for combat into the regular training of the 82d Airborne Division will begin next week.

The mobile forces which will be set up will have the mission of executing lightning strikes by means of stepped-up firepower, shock action, swift maneuvers and rapid dispersion.

Before 10 Sept. standing operating procedures on establishing the mobile forces group will be set up in each company. From then until 21 March training in maneuver, techniques of employment, battle drill and related subjects will be integrated into the regular training of units. On 31 March reports will be submitted to the Division with evaluations of the training and recommendations for further improvement.

PRECISION COPTER PILOTS. The Army Flyers, all warrant officers, who make possible the antics of Bozo the Clown, a playful Bell H-13 helicopter, and the famed Copter Square Dance Team, are: Back row, Verdell K. Schug, Clyde J. Emery, Fred O. Bell. Front row, Eldred G. Bourne, Harry E. Gilliland, Jr., and Arthur R. Tucker. These skilled flyers were featured in their "acts" at the National Aircraft Show, Will Rogers Field, Oklahoma City, 1-2-3 Sept.

Prepare For Exercise "Northern Light"

Exercise Northern Light has hit first gear at Ft. Bragg, N. C., as the 505th Airborne Infantry Regiment began coordinated planning with XVIII Airborne Corps, U. S. Army Alaska and the Tactical Air Command on the Arctic maneuvers to be held in Big Delta, Alaska, in January and February of next year.

Under the direction of Col. Osmund A. Leahy, USA, the 505th Regimental Commander, planning began for the 2000-man Regimental Combat Team exercise with one battalion of approximately 540 personnel participating in an Airborne phase of the arctic maneuvers.

Current schedules, developed by Col. Leahy and Col. Otho E. Holmes, Corps G-3, and awaiting approval by the Alaskan Army Command, call for an airlift of the entire Regiment with artillery, engineers, medical and signal attachments to begin 21 Jan., 1957.

Prior to this date basic arctic training will be conducted by the Regiment at Ft. Bragg, utilizing the many arctic trained personnel already in the Regiment. On 1 Jan., 200 officers and enlisted men will be sent to the Arctic Indoctrination School at Camp Creely, Alaska, for three weeks of intensive cadre training in arctic techniques. These men will be the instructors for the Regiment when it arrives later in the month.

Other units participating will be from the 456th Abn FA Battalion, 307th Engineer Battalion, 82d Signal Company, 307th Medical Battalion, 782d Ordnance Battalion and the 82d Parachute Maintenance Section. The units are scheduled to return by air to Fort Bragg, around 21 February.

C-124 Airlifts Army Aviation Company

An entire air section was disassembled and loaded on a Douglas C-124 Globemaster, then unloaded and reassembled during the combined Army-Air Force operation Pinecone at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Two H-13 helicopters, one L-19 light aircraft, one jeep and 15 men were loaded on the C-124. This took three hours. After a flight to Camp MacKall, the planes were unloaded and reassembled in five hours.

The experiment would appear to bear out claims that, with enough transports available at a given time, an entire air company could be packaged up and flown anywhere in the world.

Plan Million Dollar NCO Club at Bragg By July

Plans have been set to construct a million-dollar NCO club at Ft. Bragg, N. C., for occupancy by next July.

Brig. Gen. Joseph Crawford, USA, of the Army's personal services offices in Washington, recently visited the proposed site of the club and gathered information which his department will use in considering whether to grant money for the club's construction. The club, likely, will be financed chiefly through a loan.

The proposed club will include two ballrooms, an outdoor dance pavilion, a swimming pool, picnic and sports area and four tennis courts. When completed it will replace a number of other smaller clubs operated within the areas of the 82d composite units.

The new club will add modern recreational facilities to the modern living and working quarters in use or under construction. Most of the 82d has moved from the old Division area's temporary frame buildings to the permanent-type cinder block barracks of the new area, and eventually the entire Division will make the move. Modern housing is now under construction for Ft. Bragg NCO's. The new club will thus enable Division noncoms to keep up socially with their up-to-date working and living facilities.

The main building is expected to cost approximately a half-million dollars, with the pool, wading pool and bath house adding $174,000 and furnishings costing about $100,000. Total cost, with landscaping, installation of utilities and construction of the other facilities of the futuristic club, will probably be about $947,000.

The preliminary plans for the club were drawn up by the Division's architects, who designed the Division museum now under construction. Detailed architecture, however, will be contracted by a commercial firm.

U. S. AIR FORCE TRANSPORT IN PRODUCTION

Allison Turbo-Prop powered Lockheed C-130 Hercules can outfly present passenger airliners while airlifting up to 20 tons of cargo POWERED BY FOUR 3,750-horsepower Allison T56 Turbo-Prop engines, driving three-bladed Aero-products turbo-propellers, the Lockheed C-130 Hercules attains top speeds of over 370 miles per hour. And it operates at less than half the ton-mile cost of its nearest competitor.

More than 100 miles an hour faster than tactical transports flying today, the C-130 on combat missions, with 25,800 pounds of cargo and more than 5,000 gallons of fuel, can cross the continent, or an ocean, nonstop at 330 miles per hour cruise speed.

Thus, the U. S. can put supply lines in the sky — with ability to airlift cargo, personnel and equipment from the continental U. S. to a distant overseas air base and reach a combat area shortly following the arrival of jet aircraft.

With full load, the C-130 takes off and climbs to 2,500 feet in 60 seconds — a remarkable feat for a large transport. The Hercules has a flexible flight envelope in that it has the ability to fly at low altitudes for airdrops of personnel and equipment and yet has a high-altitude range of 40,000 feet.

Product of a 5-year joint effort by the Air Force, Allison and Lockheed Aircraft, the C-130 is being produced in quantity by Lockheed's Marietta, Ga., plant. These high-performance Turbo-Prop transports will begin joining the Tactical Air Command late this year.

RAdm. Towner's Task Force Completes Shipment Of Supplies To DEW-Line Sites

Despite hazards of ice, snow, sleet, fog and gale-force winds, the 56-ship Navy Task Group 5.1, led by RAdm. George C. Towner, USN, has fought its way to completion of the job of resupplying the Western sector of the Distant Early Warning (DEW-Line) radar network.

The Western sector of DEW-Line extends for about 2,000 miles across the Arctic tundra, from the Northwest tip of Alaska to Shepherd Bay, 200 miles north of Hudson Bay, Canada.

During the operation, known as "Project 572 West," the Task Group, escorted by icebreakers and guided by helicopters, delivered 12,000 measurement tons of cargo, 18,000 measurement tons of drummed petroleum products, and more than 10 million gallons of bulk petroleum to DEW-Line sites. The offloading was done by about 1,650 U.S. Army Transportation Corps specialists under command of F. T. Voorhees, USA.

The ships were sent to resupply the area by the Navy's Military Sea Transportation Service. Resupply of the DEW-

Line was only a part of MST operations for 1956. In support of the Armed Forces in the Arctic this year, MSTs transported more than 500,000 measurement tons of cargo and petroleum to U.S. bases in Greenland, Labrador, Canada and Alaska.

VAdm. John M. Will, USN, Commander, MSTs, was in overall control of the entire group of MST operations, which involved nearly 19,000 men and 121 ships.

Other segments of MSTs Arctic Operations for 1956 were "Operation Sunec," the resupply of Air Force bases and other outposts in Northeast Canada, Labrador and Greenland; "Operation Mona Lisa," the resupply of U. S. bases on the west coast of Alaska; and the resupply of Interior Department sealing stations in the Probiol Islands off the southwest coast of Alaska.

The last ship in the 1956 DEW-Line task group left Point Barrow on 29 August. The first of the returning ships were scheduled to arrive at Seattle on 7 September. San Diego-based ships will arrive in port a week later.

A/D USMCR's Required To Buy Blues & Whites

Stateside Reserve Marine Corps officers will be required to possess both the dress blue and white uniforms by 30 June 1957.

The deadline for meeting the new requirement applies to Reservists who have been on active duty for a continuous period of three or more years and who have a minimum of 24 months remaining service.

On posts, stations and Fleet Marine Force units overseas, however, Reservists may be required to have only one of the two uniforms.

The officer's blue uniform costs about $100 and the white uniform about $40. These prices do not include caps and accessories which up the total cost approximately $30.

Build Attack Transport

The Navy has awarded a $10.1-million contract to the Todd Shipyards Corp., San Pedro, Calif., for the preparation of plans, repair, activation and conversion of the SS Diamond Mariner to an attack transport (APA).

Conversion of the ship, now located at the Maritime Reserve Fleet anchorage, Olympia, Wash., will consist chiefly of adding a helicopter landing platform to her after deck, and heavy duty winches to handle the large landing craft and boats. Her mission will be to combat load, transport, disembark a battalion landing team with its assault equipment, and to furnish it with supplies on a hostile beach by means of landing craft.

Col. Zoekler New Chief
Aircraft Missiles Div.

Col. John L. Zoekler, USAF, is the new Chief of the Aircraft and Missiles Division, Maj. Gen. David H. Baker, USAF, Director of Procurement and Production, Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, announces.

Colonel Zoekler succeeds Col. Carl F. Damberg, USAF, who has been assigned as Deputy Commander, Air Materiel Force, European Area.

In his new assignment, Colonel Zoekler will be responsible for procurement and production of all aircraft and guided missiles for the Air Force.

Col. Zoekler

Colonel Zoekler for the past two years served as Deputy Base Commander, Elmendorf AFB, Alaska. Previous assignments include that of Operations Officer, 9th Air Force, during WW II; Chief of the Aeronautical Equipment Section at Headquarters, AMC, from 1946 through 1950, and Deputy Director of Procurement and Production, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, Headquarters, USAF, Washington, D. C., from 1950 through 1953.

A native of Davenport, Iowa, the Colonel attended the University of Iowa, Iowa City. He is a graduate of the Air War College.

AF Officers Encouraged To Attend
AU's Special Air Weapons Courses

Air Force officers who can qualify are being encouraged to attend the air weapons courses conducted by the Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Four separate courses are conducted by AU to acquaint AF officers of the jet age with the latest air weapons, delivery systems and employment techniques. Complete details and eligibility requirements are listed in the Air Force Training Prospectus. Generally, individual officers may apply for the courses on request to their next highest command. AF commands initiate their own quotas within budget limitations of AU.

Here are the four courses:

The seven-week Air Weapons Course provides Air Force officers a general knowledge of all types of air weapons and the detailed calculations necessary to employ weapons. In this course, selected Air Force commanders and armament, intelligence, and operations staff officers receive instruction in the entire spectrum of aerial weapons, delivery methods, and the application of weapons systems in operations situations.

A two-week refresher course is available for graduates of earlier courses whose proficiency has not been maintained by on-the-job experience.

A two-week Weapons Employment Planning Indoctrination Course provides senior Air Force commanders and staff officers with an indoctrination in the tools, techniques and procedures for weapons employment planning. It is not intended that this course will in any way obviate the longer air weapons course which is concerned with the great detail required for proficiency in this task. Rather the intent of this course is to provide students with an over-view of the weapons employment planning process in order that they may better interpret the capabilities, limitations, and significance of plans developed in this field.

A one-week Weapons Orientation Course is designed to familiarize key personnel with the general characteristics and problems associated with the employment of all types of air weapons. The curriculum includes orientation on the factors involved in weapons selection, delivery vehicles, tactical and logistical considerations, and new developments.

Squadron, group and wing commanders especially are being encouraged to apply for the two-week indoctrination course, the AF said. The course was conducted by AU for the first time last fall.

"Summa Cum Laude"

Maj. Wade S. Quick, Jr., USAF, won a special academic salute at Ohio State University's Summer quarter commencement. He was one of ten graduating seniors who received their degrees "summa cum laude," in recognition of outstanding scholastic achievement.

Major Quick, who was awarded a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree, had a cumulative point-hour average of 3.9 (4-point is perfect) for eight quarters of study at Ohio State. His major was general business.

Major Quick has been assigned to the Pentagon, where he will serve as assistant executive officer for the Procurement and Production Directorate.

COL. ROBERT J. HOLBURY, USAF, formerly of the Reconnaissance Branch, DCS/Operations, Hq USAF, recently was presented the Commendation Ribbon by Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Holzapple, USAF, 47th Bomb Wing commander, in a ceremony at Wiesbaden, Germany. Colonel Holbury's award was for exceptionally meritorious service in planning and developing control procedures for the accomplishment of peacetime photography requirements in Europe. He recently was reassigned to the NATO Defense College in Paris.

Air Force's First Tactical Missile Wing
Will Be Activated 18 Sept. at Hahn Air Base

U. S. Air Forces in Europe will activate a tactical missile wing—the first one in the Air Force—at Hahn Air Base this month, Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, USAF, Commander in Chief, has announced.

Approval to form the wing was given by the Air Force after conferences with USAF personnel officials who introduced the plan in Washington recently. General Tunner said the new wing will be designated the 701st Tactical Missile Wing and will be made up of three groups, three squadrons to a group. He added that it will be manned by more than 2,500 personnel drawn mostly from command-wide manpower resources and will be under operational jurisdiction of the Twelfth Air Force with 18 Sept. the tentative date set for it to become operational. The wing commander was not named.

Under the new wing, tactical missile squadrons will operate independently of air bases and each one will be responsible respectively for launches.

In Europe at the present time there is a guided missile group—the 7382d with headquarters at Hahn—and three tactical missile squadrons—the 1st based at Bitburg, the 11th at Sembach, and the 69th at Hahn.

General Tunner said that when the wing is completed the groups under it will be designated the 585th, 586th and 587th and the 7382d will be absorbed among them. He said the 1st, 11th and 69th Squadrons will be retained with each one going to a group.

Besides the tactical missile squadrons each group will have a communications and guidance and an administrative and logistical support squadron.

All missile squadrons in Europe are armed with Martin-Matador TM-61's which can fly at speeds of more than 650 miles an hour, and have a range of several hundred miles. Launchings in Europe are simulated, with actual firing carried out at a missile range in Libya.

Farthermost North

The northernmost solid earth landing strip in the world will be used this Fall and Spring by the Tactical Air Command's 18th Air Force transport aircraft when the cargo planes fly airlift support for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Six hundred and fifty tons of fuel oil, construction supplies and equipment will be airlifted from Thule Air Base, Greenland, into the far northern joint U.S.-Canadian weather station at Alert, Ellesmere Island, Northwest Territories, Canada. Alert is approximately 450 statute miles from the geographical North Pole.

Three Fairchild C-119 Flying Boxcars from the 464th Troop Carrier Wing, Pope Air Force Base, No. Car., and one Douglas C-124 Globemaster from the 62d Troop Carrier Wing, Larson AFB, Wash., will be loaded at Thule and off-loaded at Alert by RCAF and North East Air Command personnel.

NCO Academy Heads Meet At Orlando AFB

Orlando AFB, Fla., was the scene of the first conference of USAF NCO Academy Commandants when representatives of five academies from SAC, ARDC, and MATS met at the MATS NCO Academy there last week. Hq USAF and Air Training Command also had officers in attendance. All of the academies represented have courses which require 30 or more days in residence.

The proposed Air Force standardization of NCO Academy curricula was the top item on the agenda. Other topics discussed were: student rating systems, training techniques, and the evaluation of the final product—the graduate's improved efficiency in the field.

Other SAC representatives were Capt. James C. Fisher, M/Sgts. Merrill H. Pyetski, John C. McCrae, and Charles T. Check; ATC—Capt. Norman C. Bausch, M/Sgt. Howard D. Haugen and Mr. Julian House; Hq USAF—Col. Norman G. Morris and Mr. Earl R. Baldwin; MATS NCO Academy—Maj. Wesley E. Huff and WO Lucyan Lada; and Maj. D. O. Brandt, Hq MATS.

63d TC Wing Picked For South Pole Airdrop

The Air Force airdrop of the buildings, tractors, equipment and supplies of the International Geophysical Year base at the South Pole this Fall will be carried out by the 63d Troop Carrier Wing of Donaldson AFB, S. C., Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty, USAF announced at Tactical Air Command's 18th Air Force headquarters.

The drops will be carried out in connection with the U. S. Navy's Task Force 43 on Operation Deep Freeze. The 63d Wing base at Donaldson AFB is known as the "Combat Airlift Capital of the World" because of the great capacity of its 7 squadrons of Douglas C-124 Globemasters, the Air Force's biggest transports, the global airlift operations of the Donaldson AFB aircraft, and the 18th Air Force direction of airlift operations throughout the world.

The three key men responsible for Donaldson AFB's South Pole airdrops are Col. E. W. Hampton, commander of the 63d Troop Carrier Wing and Donaldson; Col. Horace A. Crosswell, commander of the 63d Troop Carrier Group (T.C.G.), who will be mission commander in New Zealand and Antarctica; and Maj. Cicero J. Ellen, commander of the 52d Troop Carrier Squadron, who will have all personnel in New Zealand and Antarctica assigned to his squadron. All eight C-124's on the airdrop mission will come from the 52d Squadron.

Brig. Gen. White Heads USAF Medical Staffing

Brig. Gen. M. S. White, USAF (MC), has been named the new Director of Medical Staffing and Education for the Air Force Medical Service. He will assume his duties immediately and be stationed in the Office of the Surgeon General USAF, Washington, D. C.

General Guyer, who assumed duties with UNCMAC last April, soon will leave for a new assignment in Japan. His successor will be announced later.

SAC Adjutant

Col. John J. Easton, USAF, has been named Adjutant of SAC, replacing Lt. Col. Forrest A. Brandt, USAF, who has been acting adjutant.

USAFE's Logistics Service Gets C-124s

The C-124 Globemaster has been assigned to USAFE's Air Logistics Service at Rhine-Main Air Base, Germany.

Under control of the 322d Air Division at Evreux Air Base, France, the huge Douglas transports will be used to airlift supplies to units in North Africa and the Near East.

The movement of Detachment 1, 14th Troop Carrier Squadron, from Donaldson AFB, S. C., was completed two weeks ago. The detachment will be on TDY for six months and following its tour will be replaced by another unit of the 14th.

Sonic Booms. With combat air power already virtually 100 percent jet power and fast approaching 100 percent supersonic, it is high time that the public become aware of the phenomenon known as the "supersonic boom" which inevitably accompanies such high speed flight. It is high time, too, that the Service pilots themselves be given the opportunity and responsibility of learning to control the booms so that they cause no damage or discomfort.

When we first entered the supersonic age uncontrolled booms shattered windows and frightened citizens. So, for a long time, military pilots were forbidden to fly in such a manner as to cause them. About a month ago some wise heads decided that with the jet age making such progress the public sooner or later would have to learn about them. So the Air Force's precision demonstration team, the Thunderbirds, which had just been equipped with supersonic North American F-100s were told they could use them with caution in their public shows. The public reaction was good—the citizens were thrilled and impressed, but not frightened. They were being made aware painlessly of what will soon be commonplace.

When the National Aircraft Show at Oklahoma City was being planned they were told that the booms would be permitted. But the day before the show opened pilots practicing in the air above Oklahoma City let loose with some strong and poorly aimed booms. Windows were broken and dishes rattled in residential areas. Phone calls poured into the airfield and to the local police stations from frightened and enraged citizens. A mild form of panic ensued and in the hubbub it was decided and announced that the ban would be restored immediately.

However, after the first day of the show (without booms, except for a few that apparently slipped by) General Edwin W. Rawlings, USAF, Commander of the Air Materiel Command, and Department of Defense coordinator for the show, reconsidered his original concurrence in the ban. He took the sound view that the public cannot forever be kept in ignorance of this phenomenon and that a program of judicious education was called for. Therefore, after conferring with officers working directly on the show program, he rescinded the prohibition. Sonic booms would be permitted, but pilots were to so control their aircraft and their actions that the booms would be "all sound and no fury."

In view of the panicky situation that had brought the ban about, General Rawlings' decision took courage. But we believe it was sound and that the public will now more quickly and easily become accustomed to the supersonic age and, equally important, the pilots, aided by special research studies now underway, will have the opportunity and responsibility of controlling the sound and fury of this new era.

Science-Officers. The recently announced plan by which selected and qualified officers of each of the military services may volunteer for active duty scientific training with the laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics offers unusual opportunities for the individual and for the nation.

The growing shortage of scientific and engineering personnel in industry and government is one of the real pressing problems of national defense. Men qualified in these fields are sorely needed in the defense industries, in government and private research and in the uniformed services themselves.

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics performs an enormous amount of basic re-

These men, in turn, profit by further training and experience in their specialties—training and experience which will be of great benefit to the NACA and thus to the nation. ### "Neglected Survivors"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Congratulations on your editorial, "Neglected Survivors," in the 18 Aug. issue. I agree that the new law is fine as far as it goes. However, many of us who are retired for other than disability have loved ones who will receive nothing unless they are destitute.

I wish you all success both with your new crusade and your magazine.

RAY I. MADDOCKS,
MAJOR GENERAL

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The editorial entitled "Neglected Survivors" in the 18 Aug. edition, is indeed timely and I want to express my appreciation for it. I am hopeful that through your attention to this matter the necessary action will be taken to correct this inequality.

GEORGE H. GLASSMAN,
COLONEL, USAF.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I was real pleased to read your fine editorial, "Neglected Survivors"; truer words were never written. It is good to know that the faithful men of 30 years' service and ones retired for age and their dependents are remembered by someone.

We widows of the 30-year men are no longer young and perhaps we really have the hardest time of any of the Survivors, since it is much harder for us to find employment and we just cannot live on our fifty-dollar-a-month pension. We find keeping our homes is a luxury unless we were fortunate enough to afford a home in town or city where we could rent rooms. If we do sell, the agent collects ten per cent and we also lose our pension for remainder of year in which we sell which means a goodly slice from our sale of property. I still cannot understand how they consider this income, since we already have it and only turning it into cash because we cannot afford to keep it.

Those of us who have found employment can earn only $1400 a year and keep our pension and out of the money earned comes Federal and State taxes, Social Security and Insurance.

The Survivor Bill allows a living pension with no restrictions on what they may earn and we widows of retired men were left out because our men were not retired for physical but for faithful service, in my husband's case, 37 years, serving from the time he was 17 years old. He passed on of coronary in six very short years after retirement. Yes, we are really the Neglected Survivors.

Thank you for the editorial. THE JOURNAL is a real fine paper and performs a real Service to Service Folks both active and retired and their dependents. My sincere congratulation on that 93d Birthday.

Navy Selections

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL 18 Aug. was published the list of Officers selected for Four-Stripe Rank. It would be interesting to know why the Board headed by RDM. Ingolf N. Kiland, would pass over 126 three Stripe officers, then pick up 15 below the line, then again dropping 467 slots to tap one single officer. What superior qualifications could that commander possibly have over 467 senior officers? A little tough for the officers passed over who had planned to make the Navy their Career.

CONCERNED

Integration For WO's

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Now that the Regular Army will integrate many Commissioned Officers may I suggest that it remedy an undesirable Warrant Officer situation by integrating those Reserve Officers who are now causing stagnation in the Regular WO ranks by holding RA Warrants? For the most part this group of two or three thousand Reserve Officers have never served as WO's and block many thousands of temporary WO's and outstanding EM from an opportunity to obtain and FILL these Warrant Officer grades.

ASPIRING

hanced by their tours of duty with the NACA.

Under the plan, each of the Services will submit lists of qualified candidates to the NACA which will then make its choice from those proposed. The Army's list will include the names of ROTC graduates who will be offered 18 months' active duty after completing six months with the Army. The Navy will submit a list composed of qualified officers with aeronautical engineering degrees, who have two years' additional obligated service or who indicate their desire to extend their tours of active duty to accept the NACA assignment. The Air Force plans to provide a list of officers who volunteer for two years' NACA duty.

Truly, the plan is an outstanding example of government agencies cooperating for the good of all.

10 Years Ago—All but nine of the original target ships for the atomic bomb test were either sunk, damaged or contaminated in some degree by radioactivity. It was announced by VADM. W. H. P. Of the nine vessels escaping the atomic bomb tests with negligible damage and in serviceable condition, four are the submarines Tuna, Sea Raven, Dentuda and Parche, which have proceeded under their own power to Pearl Harbor. The other five undamaged ships are attack transports, four of which are en route to the West Coast after being remanned and returned to service.

Eleven were less than a year old.

Army PubInfo Progress Told By Chief At USAREUR Conference; Accents Positive

BERCHTESGADEN,
GERMANY

SECRETARY Wilber M. Brucker and Chief of Staff Maxwell D. Taylor have approved staff reorganization changes which will give added stature to the Army's "look-ahead" public information program and provide increased career recognition for public information officers.

This was the message brought here to the fourth annual USAREUR Public Information Conference by Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., USA, Chief of Information.

Stressing the support that the Public Information program is receiving from the Army's civilian and military chiefs, General Meloy revealed that his responsibilities as Chief of Information have been shifted from the cognizance of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, to a new position directly under General Taylor.

As Chief of Public Information—a second hat that he wears—General Meloy continues responsible to Secretary Brucker for overall Army information policies and programs.

Public Information officers from all parts of Europe saw in the Pentagon staff change a strengthening of their position with field commanders.

An enthusiastic reception also was accorded the General's report that the Chief of Staff had approved a long-discussed proposal to afford greater career opportunities to officers who specialize in public information work.

Through the years, many PubInfo officers have felt that their chances for promotions to higher ranks and selection for top schools could be jeopardized by repetitive public information assignments. Under a new procedure, which will see the establishment of a monitoring desk in the Career Management Division for public information officers, these hazards will be greatly reduced.

Introduced by Col. Robert V. Shinn, USA, who leaves shortly as Chief of the USAREUR Public Information Division to accept a key post at SHAPE, General Meloy related to the Conference recent steps he has taken to strengthen the operations of his office and thereby to provide greater support for field activities.

As reported previously in THE JOURNAL, General Meloy noted that there will be Plans and Policy, Civil Liaison, Troop Information and Public Information Divisions.

Noting that Troop Education responsibilities recently were shifted to Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, Chief of Information Meloy urged his Public Information people to give continuing emphasis to the Troop Information activities.

General Meloy hammered home the theme that the Army must take effective action to "accent the positive" in getting across to the public its achievements. In this connection, and speaking against a background of recent "incidents" in Germany which have attracted wide attention in this country, General Meloy said that the Army must not lose an opportunity to "brag on the good soldier." He said that the Army must strive to win greater recognition, both in Germany and the United States, for the hundreds of actions, such as support of orphanages and construction of recreational facilities, which U.S. soldiers are accomplishing throughout USAREUR.

General Meloy was accompanied here by Lt. Col. Don Kight, USA, Chief of the Public Information Division at the Pentagon, and by Lt. Col. Thomas J. Cunningham, USA, who heads the Army's Home Town News Center in Washington, D. C.

The Conference was opened with welcoming remarks by Maj. Gen. Numa A. Watson, USA, CG of the Southern Area Command. Featured speaker the first day was Dr. Arthur Secord, Director of Community Service and Professor of Speech at Brooklyn College, New York City.

Conference heard also from Mr. Joseph Phillips, Director of the Office of Public Affairs at the American Embassy in Bonn. He outlined procedures by which military public information officers and representatives of the U. S. Information Service can work together to achieve common objectives.

Other speakers included Brig. Gen. H. M. Hobson, USA, USAREUR Provost Marshal, Col. A. N. Hickey, USAREUR Judge Advocate, and Maj. Cyril M. Coggins, USA, Chief of Plans and Policy under Colonel Shinn. Colonel Cunningham reported on the work being done by the Home Town News Center in sending out thousands of releases monthly to newspapers, radio stations, alumni magazines and industrial house organs.

The second day's session heard, in addition to General Meloy, from Mr. Lowell Bennett, American Embassy Press Attache in Paris, Col. Edward R. Ott, USA, Chief of the Armed Forces Education and Information Division for USAREUR, Mr. James Quint, Managing Editor of Stars and Stripes, and Capt. Edward J. Tait, USA, of the American Forces Network.

At the wind-up meeting on 24 August, there was addresses by Mr. Geoffrey Parsons, Jr., NATO Director of Information, Mr. John Hamilton, Public Affairs Advisor to the U. S. NATO Representative, and Herr Theodor Jacob, Landrat of Berchtesgadenland. There were also reports on "The Army on the Air" by Maj. Raymond Harvey, USA, Chief of Radio-Television, and Maj. Loehur M. Rigby, USA, Chief of Community Relations, both in Colonel Shinn's office at Heidelberg. Moderator for the Conference was Lt. Col. Stephen C. Monroe, USA, Deputy to Colonel Shinn.

REDCOAT IN 82d

A "minor" incident made a "major" bit of history recently in the 82d Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C., when, for the first time since 1775 a British Officer commanded a battalion of American Troops.

Maj. James N. Gourlay, a British exchange officer on a one year tour with the 325 Airborne Infantry Regiment, took command of the third battalion for six days until the arrival of the new commander, Lt. Col. M. J. Berenzweig, USA.

Planes Transferred To German AF At Erding

Three million dollars of equipment was transferred to the German Air Force at Erding (Germany) Air Station recently in the first substantial delivery of U. S. Air Force equipment to the new West German military.

The equipment was accepted by the German Air Force Materiel Command, which has its headquarters at Erding, in accordance with Mutual Defense Assistance Program agreements. The transfer was arranged by the Military Assistance Advisory Group to Germany.

Included in the transfer were 29 Harvard Mark IVs and 20 L-18 Piper aircraft. There were also lightweight ground transportable aircraft warning radar sets, instrument flight simulator trainers and pilot flying equipment.

Col. Roland A. Elliott, Jr., USAF base commander at Erding, in a luncheon address, hailed the property transfer as the first of a series of major transfers to the GAF in the immediate future toward making the GAF a self-sustaining member of the NATO defense team.

MAAGS Build Free World Strength; Gen. Ruffner Tells German Buildup

The work being done by Military Assistance Advisory Groups throughout the world will be a significant factor in final fiscal '56 budget action. First, Pentagon chiefs must determine how much manpower will be required to support the numerous MAAG units which are now supervising the training of about 200 divisions. Secondly, U.S. military leaders will assess what the effects of military progress in other nations may be on future Army, Navy and Air Force strength levels. For a first-hand report on possibly the most critical MAAG unit now in operation, THE JOURNAL sent a reporter to get the facts on how U.S. officers and NCO's are assisting in the buildup of the German Defense Forces.

BONN, GERMANY

I DON'T know any other place where the American people can get a bigger payoff for their investment than can be achieved with the people we have here."

That is the statement of Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, USA, Chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group at Bonn.

General Ruffner was interviewed here as the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany prepared to open debate on the vital question of how long a term of service will be set for men drafted into uniform. On that decision will hinge the fate of NATO's hopes for a German force of 500,000 officers and men.

FORCE LEVEL GOALS are 12 divisions, 20 wings and 30,000 men in the Navy.

The 12 divisions are to be equally divided between infantry and armor. In this respect, it's interesting to note that General Ruffner brings to his sensitive assignment battle experience as commander of the 2d Infantry Division in Korea and recent service in Germany as commander of the crack 2d Armored Division.

From his headquarters at Bonn, General Ruffner keeps constantly on the move to visit U. S. training teams in the field with German units. At present, more than 700 officers and men of the U. S. Services are assigned by General Henry I. Hodes, USA, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army Europe, to give on-the-spot training aid to the Germans.

At the end of the year, the Training Teams will be dissolved as such and the entire program will come directly under General Ruffner.

LEVEL-OFF MAAG STRENGTH will be about 185 at headquarters in Bonn and approximately 150 in the field.

General Ruffner and his Deputy, Brig. Gen. Milton F. Summerfelt, USAF, frequently use a C-47 in traveling to the field, and make it a practice, whenever they can, to take German Defense leaders with them.

"We have the closest possible working relations with German officials at all echelons," says General Ruffner. He and his officers are in constant contact with Minister of Defense Theodor Blank and the top officers of the German Defense Force. They are Lt. Gen. Adolph Heusinger, Chief, Military Council; Lt. Gen. Dr. Hans Speidel, Chief, Joint Forces Division; Lt. Gen. Joseph Kammhuber, Chief, Division VI (Air Force); Maj. Gen. Hellmuth Laegler, Chief, Division V (Army); and Vadm. Friedrick Ruge, Chief, Division VII, (Navy).

MUST KNOW GERMAN

General Ruffner wants all of his key officers to have a working knowledge of German, so that they can do a better job, both at headquarters in Bonn and "most importantly in the field."

To this end, the General has been taking German lessons for at least an hour a day. He has arranged also with Career Management officials at the Pentagon to send officers to the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., before sending them to Bonn.

There's one officer here who has a particularly high German language qualification. He is Colonel Heintges, an Infantryman, who is a former Instructor in German at West Point.

ner's headquarters, the U. S. Armed Forces have the regular attaches assigned to the office of Ambassador James B. Conant. They are Col. Roy Lasseter, Jr., USA; Capt. F. J. Harfinger, USN; and Col. J. C. Kilborn, USAF.

As Chief of the MAAG, General Ruffner is under Ambassador Conant, and reports on military matters to Lt. Gen. George H. Decker, USA, who is Deputy C-in-C of the U. S. European Command under General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA.

"SINCE THE GERMANS are well advanced in military strategy and tactics," General Ruffner relates, "our job mainly consists in aiding German soldiers, sailors and airmen to determine what kind of equipment they need and how to operate it."

To this end, the MAAG here coordinates plans for sending scores of Germans to specialized schools in the United States, such as the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga., the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., and the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph AFB, Tex.

So far, about 10 German pilots have been checked out in U. S. jets. "There will be many more in the months ahead," General Ruffner comments.

The MAAG Chief says that the German officers and NCO's are "enthusiastic to get their forces in top fighting shape as quickly as possible." For that reason, he adds, they are concerned about the political decisions that are forthcoming.

Responsible German officials estimate that without an effective draft, a force of only about 250,000 is possible, or half the NATO goal.

But if the Bundestag and Bundesrat approve an effective draft program—an 18 month tour is seen as a minimum basic requirement—then it will be possible, starting in April, to speed the growth of the German military forces.

MANY OBSERVERS in the U. S.—particularly those who have knowledge of military budget action at the Pentagon—feel that the future of the German Army, Navy and Air Force will have a major impact on U. S. manpower and force levels.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has said recently that he believes the German people must square up to their responsibilities for safeguarding the Free World and provide an effective military force in line with NATO planning.

Here in Bonn, General Ruffner and his associates, with "100 percent co-operation all the way," from Ambassador Conant, Generals Hodes and Decker and from all the German defense leaders, have gotten the job off to a fast start.

They are hopeful that the progress can be accelerated by favorable domestic political decisions.

ARMY LIGHT PLANES AND HELICOPTERS made a big hit with the more than 150,000 citizens who attended the National Aircraft Show at Oklahoma City over Labor Day week-end. The high performance aircraft of the Air Force and Navy occupied the first two-thirds of each show-day. They thrilled the public with supersonic speeds, fast climbs that put aircraft out of sight in a few seconds and with astounding precision flying. But it is difficult to keep such aircraft within sight. The Army's low-performance aircraft, on the other hand, seemed always to be virtually in the laps of the crowd. The helicopters, from Bozo the Clown to the bigger troop carrying ones, seemed almost close enough to touch. Also, a large number of people had not realized before the extent of the Army's participation in aviation, so their interest was heightened.

The new course was prepared for the Institute by the Non-Resident Training Branch of the 3415th Technical Training Group at Lowry AFB, Colo.

MARINES WHO HAVE REQUESTED RETIREMENT or transfer to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve are being given a chance to withdraw their applications. In keeping with new Defense Department instructions, they will be permitted to stay on active duty through the end of January 1957 in order to qualify for added Social Security benefits under the Survivor Benefits Act which goes into effect on 1 Jan. Any Marine who wants to go ahead with his retirement plans or his plans to transfer to FCMR will have to sign a statement (in duplicate) acknowledging that he understands he will lose certain Social Security benefits.

WITH THE WORLD AS THEIR PARISH, two Catholic priests have just completed their seventh year of conducting preaching missions for Catholic AF personnel and their families at overseas bases. Chaplains (Lieutenant Colonels) John D. St. John and Stephen J. O'Connor, who comprise the Catholic Preaching Mission Team of the Air Force, have conducted 258 five-day missions for 465,000 persons at AF installations in Europe, the Far East, Far North and Canal Zone. They logged 306,800 air miles in the seven years. Chaplains St. John and O'Connor begin a new series of overseas missions this month.

"OPERATION REHEAT" is the code name for a new drive SAC has initiated to reenlist prior servicemen. Appropriately, it follows a recently established airman retention program known as "OPERATION PREHEAT." Preheat is designed to impress upon the individual who is about to be separated the advantages of a career in the Air Force, while Reheat is designed to contact prior servicemen, who, when in active Air Force service, possessed a critical Specialty. SAC's CinC, General Curtis E. LeMay, holds that his organization is only 83 percent effectively manned so that every possible source must be "tapped."

WITH A MAGNANIMOUS DISPLAY of Interservice Cooperation, the Navy recently rushed to the aid of seven Army enlisted men stationed at Barrow Village, Alaska. The Army men, on duty in the Far North with the Alaska Communication Service, were faced with the horrendous prospect of being unable to comply with a new uniform regulation which required all officers and men to be wearing black leather shoes, instead of brown, by 1 Sept. "Regulations are regulations, even at this remote outpost," declared RADM. George C. Towner, USN, Commander of the 56-ship Task Group 5.1 which was in the area following completion of off-loading supplies along the 2,000-mile western sector of DEW Line. The Army men were provided black shoes from the ship's store of the Admiral's flagship, USS Eldorado. The grateful communications men, accepting the gift, dubbed 1 Sept. "Black Saturday."

CIVILIAN FLIGHT INSTRUCTORS at the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., will begin wearing Army-prescribed uniforms next month—bottle green trousers, mint green shirts, black jackets, black ties, and baseball style flight cap (also bottle green). Because the instructors fly with students at Rucker and are required to be present at daily military formations, the Army has decided that they should be uniformed "for the purpose of identification and discipline." They will wear new Civilian Flight Instructor insignia (cloth patches) of a design to be approved by the CG of the Aviation Center.

THE FASCINATION HELICOPTERS hold for even the most experienced airmen was shown dramatically at the Oklahoma City air show last week-end when show officials seeking the members of the Air Force's famed jet precision flying team, the Thunderbirds, found them on the field taking turns flying in the Army's YH-32 Hiller ram-jet helicopter with Capt. Joseph E. Bowman, USA, pilot of the Army's first non-stop transcontinental helicopter run.

GERMAN DEFENSE LEADERS are disturbed over recent reports in the U. S. that Army strength will be cut. They fear that announcement of such action this Fall could jeopardize further the chances of political approval in Germany for the buildup to the NATO objective of a 500,000 man Army, Navy and Air Force.

THE NEW 101st AIRBORNE DIVISION is short on musicians! In fact, the entire Third Army needs qualified bandmen. But the new 101st Band is authorized and when they "stand up, hook up, and tune up" it will mean $55 more each month in airborne pay! Even men in uniform who may not now be serving in a band MOS may apply to fill vacancies in the "Screaming Eagle" Division band.

SOUND OUT THE TROOPS might well be the motto of the Defense Department pay group headed by GE President Ralph J. Cordiner. Members of the Pay Committee have been and still are going to the grass roots in their efforts to better understand Service pay problems. A good example of their whirlwind activities is shown in a small slice of Chairman Cordiner's recent European tour. In a period of less than 23 hours, he visited four ships underway at sea, made a carrier landing and takeoff, made two helicopter flights, rode the high-line three times between ships, and talked with more than 100 men in all ranks and rates.

Pioneer put that smile on his face!

There's many a worried face in the aircraft industry . . . especially when it comes to ordering odd shipments of aluminum extrusions. But thanks to PIONEER'S unique service, those frowns are giving way to smiles. For only PIONEER ships aluminum extrusions (in any quantity) the same day you order — and ships them anywhere in the world!

The largest stock of aircraft aluminum shapes and alloys in the entire industry (1,250,000 pounds!) is within your arm's reach — just call PIONEER. Aircraft alloys in 2024 (24S) and 7075 (75S), and all Army-Navy Drawing standards and standard open die extrusions, plus many other standard aircraft shapes, are warehoused for immediate shipment . . . over 2000 different shapes!

All stock is new mill material, and PIONEER stocks it in an oiled condition to prevent corrosion . . . carefully packages it for safe shipment.

Partial view of PIONEER'S 90,000 square foot warehouse.

Modern warehousing, the PIONEER way, is a big money saver: speeds production, saves storage space, cuts overhead. You have lower insurance, taxes, accounting and handling costs. You can afford to experiment because PIONEER will deliver in any quantity, no matter how small — and because PIONEER ships the same day you order, you can relax in emergencies!

If building or maintaining aircraft is your business, you need PIONEER'S new catalogue. It gives complete sizes, dimensions, factors, etc. Its exclusive cross-reference section is an invaluable aid. Send for it today, and let PIONEER put a smile on your face!

WINGS FOR THE ATOM

Lockheed scientists are designing

Domesticating the atom to serve mankind has intrigued science for over a decade. One top priority application, secretly under way for several years at Lockheed: developing a nuclear-powered plane as different from present types as a supersonic jet is from the first stick-and-wire biplane.

IMAGINE A GIANT AIRCRAFT SOARING ALOFT, NOT WITH TONS OF GASOLINE, BUT WITH A URANIUM FUEL SUPPLY NO BIGGER THAN A HANDFUL OF GRAVEL. EVENTUALLY, SUCH A PLANE-OF-THE-FUTURE—WITH THIS SCANT FUEL SUPPLY—WILL GIRDLE THE GLOBE NON-STOP BETWEEN SUNRISE AND SUNSET.

More than a dream, this incredible aircraft is now being developed by Lockheed for the U.S. Air Force despite problems of propulsion, structures and materials, thermodynamics, crew survival, producibility and maintenance unique in aviation.

Old concepts are being shelved, traditional solutions rejected. The kind of aeronautical advances that once took a generation of research are now being telescoped into a few months, even weeks.

Soon several hundred nuclear scientists and engineers from Lockheed's Georgia Division will move to the North Georgia mountain country. There on a vast site—some 40 miles from U.S. Air Force Plant No. 6 at Marietta, operated by Lockheed—will be built the nation's largest facility for the development of atomic-powered aircraft. The exact status today of U. S. atomic plane

LOCKHEED'S NEWS COLUMN

Detection of Heart Disease—our nation's #1 killer—is being speeded with aid of Lockheed's battery of super-fast electronic brains that are correlating the studies sponsored by the Nash Cardiovascular Foundation. Ten minutes' work sandwiched between computations at the Missile Systems Division gives the cardiologist complete and accurate harmonic analysis of electrocardiograms that speed his vital research immeasurably...

Radiant heating, first time used in any airliner, will be one of the many new creature comforts of Lockheed's up-coming propjet Electra. Heating wires in walls and ceilings work like electric blankets to give no-draft, no-hot-spot comfort...

Atomic plane concept on a recent cover of Newsweek was not based in any way on Lockheed's Georgia Division ANP (Aircraft Nuclear Power) Project. That plane will really surprise you...

25,000 Lockheed stockholders in every state of the union learned in mid-August that sales reached approximately $345 million for the first half of 1956. In a like period 20 years ago sales were less than one million...

Univac's newest cousin Si (for Scientific) will be the top quiz kid in the battery of analogue and digital brains at Lockheed's Missile Systems' Computer Center. Si, first Model 1103A Univac in use, "thinks" up to 100 times faster than other computers...

A nationally-known Los Angeles physician, after periods of intense nerve strain, goes to the airport, buys a round-trip ticket to New York on a Super Constellation, spends a quiet day at the Waldorf-Astoria, and comes back on the next flight. Says: "It relaxes me"...

Hercules C-130 performance data just released show that the USAF strong-man can haul 20 tons of cargo right on the contrails of a fast jet tactical force. 100 mph faster than present combat transports, Hercules climbs fully loaded to 2500 feet altitude in just one minute.

WINGS FOR THE ATOM

Lockheed scientists are designing

Domesticating the atom to serve mankind has intrigued science for over a decade. One top priority application, secretly under way for several years at Lockheed: developing a nuclear-powered plane as different from present types as a supersonic jet is from the first stick-and-wire biplane.

IMAGINE A GIANT AIRCRAFT SOARING ALOFT, NOT WITH TONS OF GASOLINE, BUT WITH A URANIUM FUEL SUPPLY NO BIGGER THAN A HANDFUL OF GRAVEL. EVENTUALLY, SUCH A PLANE—THE FUTURE—WITH THIS SCANT FUEL SUPPLY—WILL GIRDLE THE GLOBE NON-STOP BETWEEN SUNRISE AND SUNSET.

More than a dream, this incredible aircraft is now being developed by Lockheed for the U.S. Air Force despite problems of propulsion, structures and materials, thermodynamics, crew survival, producibility and maintenance unique in aviation.

Old concepts are being shelved, traditional solutions rejected. The kind of aeronautical advances that once took a generation of research are now being telescoped into a few months, even weeks.

Soon several hundred nuclear scientists and engineers from Lockheed's Georgia Division will move to the North Georgia mountain country. There on a vast site—some 40 miles from U.S. Air Force Plant No. 6 at Marietta, operated by Lockheed—will be built the nation's largest facility for the development of atomic-powered aircraft.

LOCKHEED'S NEWS COLUMN

Detection of Heart Disease—our nation's #1 killer—is being speeded with aid of Lockheed's battery of super-fast electronic brains that are correlating the studies sponsored by the Nash Cardiovascular Foundation. Ten minutes' work sandwiched between computations at the Missile Systems Division gives the cardiologist complete and accurate harmonic analysis of electrocardiograms that speed his vital research immeasurably...

Radiant heating, first time used in any airliner, will be one of the many new creature comforts of Lockheed's up-coming propjet Electra. Heating wires in walls and ceilings work like electric blankets to give no-draft, no-hot-spot comfort...

Atomic plane concept on a recent cover of Newsweek was not based in any way on Lockheed's Georgia Division ANP (Aircraft Nuclear Power) Project. That plane will really surprise you...

25,000 Lockheed stockholders in every state of the union learned in mid-August that sales reached approximately $345 million for the first half of 1956. In a like period 20 years ago sales were less than one million...

Univac's newest cousin Si (for Scientific) will be the top quiz kid in the battery of analogue and digital brains at Lockheed's Missile Systems' Computer Center. Si, first Model 1103A Univac in use, "thinks" up to 100 times faster than other computers...

A nationally-known Los Angeles physician, after periods of intense nerve strain, goes to the airport, buys a round-trip ticket to New York on a Super Constellation, spends a quiet day at the Waldorf-Astoria, and comes back on the next flight. Says: "It relaxes me"...

Hercules C-130 performance data just released show that the USAF strong-man can haul 20 tons of cargo right on the contrails of a fast jet tactical force. 100 mph faster than present combat transports, Hercules climbs fully loaded to 2500 feet altitude in just one minute.

From first page—

contracts for all of the Services, and negotiations have been underway for some time so that final papers will be signed rapidly as soon as the Defense Secretary gives the green light.

Since the new law was approved by the President last June, the Pentagon has been working closely with the American Medical Association and its State organizations as well as with representatives of the Blue Cross, Blue Shield and commercial insurance companies who deal in health insurance. All have cooperated in developing a program acceptable to dependents, insurance and health groups, physicians and the Government alike.

THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT says the American Medical Association has given the program its "whole-hearted support."

About half of the States have reported that they will go along with the Defense Department plans, and the majority of the other States have indicated that they are in accord with the program. Each State will set its own schedule of allowances based on recommendations of the state physicians, associations and subject to the approval of the Federal Government.

After treating a military dependent the physician will present his bill (based on an established fee schedule in his State) to the organization designated by the State physicians' associations.

CIVILIAN HOSPITALS will present their bills to the Blue Cross organization in approximately one-half of the States and to insurance companies which are handling the program in the remaining areas.

Dependents can be hospitalized in semiprivate civilian accommodations for a maximum of 365 days for each admission, including all necessary services and supplies furnished by the hospital during inpatient confinement. No civilian outpatient treatment will be provided.

They also may receive from civilian physicians whatever medical and surgical care is necessary during the period of their hospitalization.

Expectant mothers are eligible for complete civilian obstetrical and maternity service, including prenatal and postnatal care.

The required services of a civilian physician or surgeon prior to and following hospitalization for a bodily injury or for a surgical operation also are authorized by the program.

THE MEDICAL CARE plan also will pay for diagnostic tests and procedures, including laboratory and X-ray examinations accomplished or recommended by a physician for dependents in civilian hospitals.

In short, the Defense Department points out, the new program will take care of all of the major medical expenses of military families, wherever located. This means that Service dependents will face no heavy demands on their pocket-books as the result of illness or accident.

Pentagon officials believe that if the plan works well and is economically administered—and they're going to make every effort to see that it is—the Congress may expand the benefits, give the Services authority to care for parents and parents-in-law and for the dependents of retired personnel, and perhaps increase the program to include some outpatient care.

The concept of civilian care for military families is new and the Services are hopeful that it will prove so successful and so economical that it can be greatly liberalized.

Insurance

will be discontinued.

After 25 April 1951, persons on active duty holding either term or permanent plan NSLI policies or USGLI policies were given permission to place under waiver all or a portion of their premium payments.

Those having term insurance were permitted to waive the full premium. Those having permanent plan policies were permitted to waive a portion of the premiums and thereby receive refunds in the amount of such waiver.

Any member having a policy under waiver can cancel the waiver at any time while on active duty or within 120 days after separation from the service, and resume payment of the full premium.

Premiums Under Waiver

The Survivor Benefits Act of 1956 provides that where policy premiums are left under waiver after 1 May 1957, the Serviceman's survivors may receive only VA benefits existing before the new law.

By resuming full payment of premiums, which have been under waiver, a serviceman's survivors will not only be eligible for the more liberal benefits under the new law, but will also be entitled to the full proceeds of his insurance policy.

In view of the loss in survivor benefits which may result in an individual's failure to cancel a waiver of premium prior to 1 May 1957 it is important that each member give serious thought to the cancellation of such waiver and also, the continuation of his service life insurance.

Never Had Policy

If you have never purchased a service life insurance policy and will be discharged by the end of this year you may apply for a five year term plan after you are discharged but no later than 31 Dec. 1956.

Policy Expired or Surrendered

Members in this category have the privilege of applying for a replacement policy while on active duty or within 120 days after separation.

If you are one of these, remember that the $10,000 indemnity or "free insurance" is cancelled after 31 Dec. 1956. It may be wise for you to take out a new service policy to take its place.

BUSIEST AIR BASE?

McConnell AFB, Kans., claims to handle the greatest amount of air traffic of any military installation in the United States. During a normal five-day work week, McConnell's control tower operators clear 1,413 landings and take-offs per day which is 59 per hour or nearly one per minute.

In charge of the McConnell control tower and also ground control approach and navigational aids is Capt. Raymond Swinkowski, USAF, of the 2007th Airways and Air Communications System Squadron.

Army & Navy Shooters Go To Olympics For U. S.

M/Sgt. Huellet L. Benner, USA, and CWO Offutt Pinion, USN, have been named the two free (slowfire) pistol shooters to represent the United States this Fall at the Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia.

Sergeant Benner and Warrant Officer Pinion won their places by topping all competitors in a 60-shot, three-day Olympic course held at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Benner has represented the U. S. at the Olympic Games twice before. In 1948 he tied for second place at London and won the gold medal in 1952 at Helsinki. Warrant Officer Pinion averaged 539 points out of a possible 600 for the three days. Sergeant Benner's average was 533.

Names of those who placed in the first 10 in addition to Benner and Pinion are: Maj. Ben C. Curtis, USA, fourth; Capt. Nelson H. Lincoln, USA, seventh; 1st Lt. David O. Miller, ninth; Lt. Col. Chester T. Harvie, USA, 10th; Sgt. Merriweather Jones, fifth.

Army Stabilizes Additional Assignments; Most 3-Yr. Tours Go To Field Grade Officers

tours of duty. Many, however, remain at one, one and one-half, two or two and one-half years.

The Army said command positions generally are not included in the new program "because it is necessary that as many officers as possible be afforded the opportunity to command troops."

Here is a list of units or activities to which field grade officers will be assigned for 36 months, unless otherwise indicated. Company grade officers and warrant officers assigned to these units will receive stabilized tours only in those instances where a length of tour is indicated:

Assignment Areas

2—Other officers and WOs currently assigned with EDCSA prior to 1 July '56—24 months or 36 months as determined mutually by the Department of the Army and the Chief, AFSPWP.

4—Warrant officers possessing and performing duty in MOS 1184 or 1185—36 months.

Assignment Policies

The Army said assignments to stabilized duties will be made, so far as practical, from that group of officers and warrant officers whose date of return from a normal tour of foreign service is so recent, as to make it unlikely that they will be due for foreign service within two years.

Stabilization of assignments of officers and warrant officers serving with units or activities in the list above will be limited to those whose assignments are made by Department of the Army orders, except when an officer or installation commander who has authority to publish orders assigns an officer or WO to a stabilized position vacancy. In such instances, clearance will be obtained from Dept. of the Army, to include cases in which no change of station is made. If the officer has an expected date of assignment overseas, which would preclude

Release From Assignment

Officers assigned to stabilized activities are available for reassignment upon completion of the prescribed tour, the Army said, or may be reassigned under any of the following conditions before completion of the tour:

1—Volunteers for foreign service.
2—Approved request for compassionate reassignment.
3—Becomes disqualified for any reason to serve in the stabilized assignment without regard to length of time served.
4—Selected by Dept. of the Army for attendance at a service school with less than one-sixth of stabilized tour remaining.

The detailed program is outlined in Army Regulation 614-5, dated 20 August, and also includes a complete breakdown of the tours of duty for enlisted men in 18 assignment areas.

USAFE's Fourth Kinderlift Gives 3,216 Berlin Youngsters Vacations In West

BERLIN, GERMANY. The U. S. Air Forces in Europe's fourth and biggest Operation Kinderlift came to an end here as USAFE C-47s and C-54s formally completed the job of bringing back to Tempelhof Air Base 3216 Berlin children who had been vacationing in German and American homes in West Germany.

The Kinderlift return operation was handled in 120 flights which originated at Rhein Main, Neubiberg Air Base, and civilian airfields at Hamburg, Hannover, and Wahn (near Bonn). The children, selected by the German Red Cross, Hilfswerk Berlin, and other welfare agencies, had been flown to the German Federal Republic in a four-day operation.

Lt. Col. Bernard McCaskill was USAFE project officer for Kinderlift return flights. He was assisted by Lt. Col. Roy H. Sheehan, 7100th Support Wing project officer.

Lt. Col. Joseph H. Bird was original USAFE project officer for Kinderlift IV. He returned to the U. S. on completion of his overseas tour this month, however, and was succeeded by Lt. Col. McCaskill of the Operations Services Division, DCS/Operations, USAFE headquarters.

USAFE aircraft for Kinderlift IV were furnished by the 7100th Support Wing, Wiesbaden Air Base; 7167th Air Transport Sq. (SAMS), Rhein Main, and the 7415th Air Base Group, Orly Field, France. Crews were from these units or from USAFE headquarters. In a short ceremony at Tempelhof Air Base at the beginning of Kinderlift return flights, the German Red Cross gave its Distinguished Service Medal in Silver to Maj. Gen. Royden E. Beebe, Jr., USAFE Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations. General Beebe, who is leaving soon for a new assignment at USAF headquarters, had supervised flight arrangements for all four Kinderlift operations which since 1953 have seen 7,786 Berlin children airlifted safely from Berlin to the West and back again to their homes.

Hardest working aircraft crew during the return phase of Kinderlift, perhaps, was that of a C-54 from the 7167th Air Transport Sq. (SAMS). This Skymaster flew seven missions in one week, bringing 405 youngsters back to their homes in the divided city.

The plane's crew included Capt. A. W. (Bill) Cole, aircraft commander; Capt. W. W. Crandall, pilot; Staff Sergeants Thomas L. Turner and Bennie D. Frizzell, crew chiefs, and A/IC Kelly G. Lamberton, radio operator.

Kinderlift had its beginning in 1953 when the Northwest German Radio Network asked the USAFE Commander in Chief, Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, for help in transporting to West Germany for vacations 1,000 needy children who could not travel safely by land through the Soviet Zone because of their parents' refugee status. The request was approved and Kinderlift was under way.

It has grown in size in each of the succeeding years. In 1954 USAFE planes hauled 1,440 kids to the West and back; 2,130 in 1955, and a record 3,216 this year.

The Navy has decided to set fire to a 200-foot, two story auxiliary building at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

The ancient stucco structure—one of the oldest at the Center—has outlived its usefulness and is in such bad condition that it is not worth repairing. Rather than simply demolish it, Great Lakes officials have chosen to realize a final benefit by utilizing it in a fire control research project. Almost every type of fire apparatus and appliance will be brought into play during the exercises.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Lear Opens New Lab For Air Instruments

Opening of a new research and development building adjoining its other facilities at Santa Monica, Calif. Municipal Airport has been announced by Lear, Inc. The new structure houses the West Coast engineering branch of Lear's Grand Rapids (Mich.) Division.

Established in 1949, this group now includes about 100 engineering specialists and collaborates closely with the engineers of Lear's western customers. Its Manager, Victor Welge, explained that this close teamwork usually starts at the time a new airplane design is conceived in one of the prime airframe or missile plants.

"By providing a properly equipped large group of specialists locally available, Lear has been able to meet the challenge of developing products to meet the ever more rigorous requirements of aircraft and missiles projected in the West," Mr. Welge said.

"Typical of such projects are gyro-stabilized platforms or master references, autopilots and stabilizing systems that are going into airplanes and missiles which may remain security classified for years. One advanced system, developed here to meet airplane control system requirements laid down by Lockheed engineers, enhances the stability of the extremely fast F-104A interceptor. This was the first production system of its kind, and is completely transistorized and sub-miniaturized.

USA Seeks Lightweight Gas Turbine Engine

The Army has awarded contracts amounting to nearly $220 thousand to four members of the gas turbine industry to analyze design criteria for a 250 horsepower shaft turbine-type aircraft engine.

At present, the Army is exploring the possibilities of planes including fixed-wing, short take-off and landing (STOL), vertical take-off and landing (VTOL), flying platforms, and helicopters. Since the shaft turbine engine is capable of delivering more horse-power per pound of engine with less drag than engines now in use, the Army considers the 250 horsepower shaft turbine extremely applicable to higher speed observation, reconnaissance, and command missions. In addition, lighter weight engines will permit greater load carrying capacity for cargo, equipment, or fuel in all types of planes, the Army said.

Design study contracts have been awarded to the listed corporations for the indicated amounts:

Continental Aviation and Engineering Corp., Detroit, Mich., $52,308; Lycoming Division, Avco Manufacturing Corp., Stamford, Conn., $59,113; Studebaker-Packard Corp., Detroit, Mich., $57,690; and Turbomotor Division, Curtiss-Wright Corp., Hempstead, L. I., N. Y., $50,085.

The "Terrier" system—installed aboard the cruisers USS Boston and USS Canberra—is the world's first automatic stowage, handling, and launching mechanism for guided missiles.

Mr. Hawley and Mr. Kane also were cited for their contributions in the design and production of the Navy's new automatic 5-inch 54 calibre rapid-fire anti-aircraft gun mounts. ### Sound Waves Will Test Army Missile Shells

The task of detecting weaknesses in fusion welds in the shells of guided missiles may be done in the future by sound waves beamed at a frequency too high for the human ear to hear, according to a new method developed by four Army Ballistic Missile Agency scientists at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

This method of inspecting missile shells will permit scientists to probe the strength of the weapons while construction crews still are at work, and thus obtain immediate results. Formerly, this job was done by radiography, a method that required radiation-proof walls and time to develop and evaluate the film on which the weak spots were recorded.

Thousands of Service Children Assured Schooling Under War Orphans Act

Free college educations are available to the sons and daughters of thousands of active duty members and retired members of the Armed Forces who die in the years ahead.

If a Serviceman with WWI, WWII or Korean service dies of an injury or disease resulting from military service, either while he is on active duty or after he is retired (and the same holds true for deceased or discharged veterans), his children immediately become eligible for Government-paid schooling.

The new educational program—similar to the GI Bill for veterans—is authorized by the War Orphans Education Act, Public Law 634, 84th Congress.

The purpose of the legislation is to give these young people an opportunity to get the education they otherwise might have obtained had their parent lived. Approximately 150,000 are expected to be or become eligible for the free education.

Under the terms of the act, students would receive $110 a month (if in school full time) for a period of 36 months, the equivalent of four years' college education. The student may pursue an educational goal, such as a college degree; a professional goal, such as law or medicine; or a vocational goal such as bookkeeper or machinist.

Here are some questions and answers which the VA has prepared in connection with the new program:

Eligibility

Q—Under what conditions must the veteran's death have occurred, in order for his son or daughter to be eligible for schooling?

A—The veteran must have died of a disease or injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty in active military service. If death occurred after military service, the veteran must have been discharged under other-than-dishonorable conditions.

Q—How old must the deceased veterans' children be to receive educational benefits?

A—Generally they must be between 18 and 23 years of age.

Q—Is it possible for a person to start school before age 18?

A—Yes, if he has quit or graduated from high school, is above the age of compulsory school attendance in his State, and VA finds it would be in his best interest to commence training before he reaches age 18.

Q—What are the conditions under which schooling may continue beyond age 23?

A—There are three: (1) if the person had passed his 18th birthday (but not his 23d) when the law went in effect; (2) if he was eligible for schooling, but served in the armed forces before age 23; (3) if the veteran-parent dies after his son or daughter is 18 but not yet 23.

Q—In those cases, how far beyond age 23 can the young man or woman attend school?

A—Under (1) above, to 29 June 1961. Under (2) above, to five years from the date of his discharge. Under (3) above, to five years from the death of his parent. In no event may schooling extend beyond his 31st birthday.

Q—Can a person receive schooling under the program while he is in the armed forces?

A—He cannot. Further, to be eligible after military service, he must have received a discharge under other-than-dishonorable conditions.

Length of Training

Q—How much schooling may an eligible young man or woman receive?

A—Up to 36 months—or the equivalent of 36 months if enrolled in part-time schooling.

Q—If the eligible person is a veteran will he be entitled to 36 months of schooling if he also had training under the Korean GI Bill or Public Law 894 (for the disabled)?

A—No. His entitlement to schooling under the War Orphans' Education Program will be reduced by the amount of training received under the Korean GI Bill or Public Law 894.

Kind of Training

Q—What is the nature of training that a young man or woman may receive?

A—It must be a "program of education." This means any curriculum or any combination of school subjects, generally accepted as necessary to reach a specified goal.

Q—What type of goal must it be?

A—An educational goal, such as a college degree; or a professional goal, such as law or medicine; or vocational goal, such as bookkeeper or machinist.

Q—May a person take courses frequently pursued for a vocational or recreational purposes?

A—Only if he submits justification to VA that the course will be of bona fide use in his present or contemplated business or occupation.

Q—Are there any courses not allowed?

A—Courses in bartending, dancing and personality developments are prohibited by law. Also flight training is prohibited, unless it's part of a standard college course for which credit is given toward a degree.

Q—Are there any other types of training not permitted?

A—The law does not permit on-the-job training, on-the-farm training, correspondence school training, training given by radio or television, and training in foreign countries.

Place of Training

Q—Where may a young man or woman take training?

A—In public or private secondary schools, vocational schools, business schools, junior colleges, teachers' colleges, normal schools, professional schools, scientific or technical schools, colleges and universities, or other schools that furnish education at the secondary school level or above.

Q—May a young man or woman take his or her regular high school education under the program?

A—No. The law prohibits it.

Q—Then under what conditions may a person enroll in a course offered by a school below the college level?

A—He must have completed or quit his regular high school education. And the below-college course he wants must be specialized vocational training that will fit him for a vocational goal.

Q—Must the student's course be approved by a State Approving Agency?

A—Yes. Any course that's approved for veterans under the Korean GI Bill will be considered approved. Of course, it must be of the type that can be taken under this program.

Applying for Training

Q—What's the first step in applying for schooling under the program?

A—The parent or guardian of the young man or woman must file an application with VA. If VA finds that basic eligibility requirements are met, the application will be approved provisionally.

Q—What if the man or woman is of legal age?

A—If he has no known legal disability, he can act for himself. His parent or guardian won't enter into the picture.

Q—Assuming that VA has provisionally approved the application, what is the next step?

A—Next, the young man or woman, preferably accompanied by parent or guardian, will be furnished VA educational or vocational counseling. Purpose of counseling is to help in the selection of a goal, and in the development of a program of education leading to the goal.

Q—Does the parent or guardian have anything further to do?

A—Yes. He must prepare an educational plan for the young man or woman. This plan must show the selected goal, the program of education, the school or schools the student plans to attend, and an estimate of how much money tuition and fees will add up to. This plan, signed by the parent or guardian, becomes part of the application.

Rep. Bennett Blames Pentagon For Death Of $15 Million Substandard Quarters Bill

The author of the substandard quarters bill blames the measure's demise on the Pentagon.

The big rent-cut program, worth $15 million to 36,000 military families, died in the final days of the 84th Congress. A JOURNAL report (18 August) told how the plan met its death.

In a statement to THE JOURNAL this week, Representative Charles E. Bennett (D-Fla.), sponsor of the bill, said the Defense Department "could have saved the bill and brought about its enactment if they had agreed to the House version of the bill."

He said he personally feels "they should have done this."

At the same time, however, Congressman Bennett added "it is not clear to me that the House could not have accepted some of the provisions which had been added by the Senate."

THE HOUSE HAD PLACED a two-year limitation on the program, admonishing the Services to either improve their substandard housing or get rid of it within that period. The Senate lifted this limitation at the insistence of the Navy managers of the legislation.

Representative Bennett, who has championed lower rents for substandard quarters in each of the past several sessions of Congress, said the bill's death was "the most disappointing defeat which I have ever had."

Here is what he told THE JOURNAL:

"H.R. 5731 was a bill to eliminate substandard housing in military installations. It was approved by the Bureau of the Budget, by the President, by the Department of Defense and by both Houses of Congress. Yet, it failed to pass. With all of this array of support for a bill designed to improve the housing conditions of service personnel and to see to it that they did not pay excessive rent for inferior quarters, it is probably one for the books that the legislation finally died and that this was primarily because the many friends of the serviceman could not agree upon the ideal way of bringing about the changes which were needed.

"The House Committee, and the House generally, in passing this legislation condemned the philosophy of military families having to live in inadequate housing and expressed impatience in improving housing conditions. As the bill passed the House it required the Department to bring up to standard within two years, the inadequate housing on hand. The Senate increased the time limit to three years and authorized continued occupancy of some substandard housing.

"SPOKESMEN FOR THE DEPARTMENT of Defense could have saved the bill and brought about its enactment if they had agreed to the House version of the bill. Personally, I feel that they should have done this, because even if they had found that the two year limit placed in the House legislation is too short, it could have been corrected by subsequent legislation. On the other hand, it is not clear to me that the House could not have accepted some of the provisions which had been added by the Senate. The sum result is that servicemen throughout our country in large numbers will seriously suffer because of excessive rents for inadequate quarters and because there is no adequate program for bringing substandard housing up to proper standards. What is still worse, is that it is now uncertain that there ever will be an adequate program to eliminate substandard housing and equitably adjust rents.

"As the author of this legislation, I can truthfully say that this is the most disappointing legislative defeat which I have ever had because everyone involved wanted to help the serviceman; but in their anxiety to help the serviceman in their particular way and without the necessary give and take which is so essential in legislation, the sum result is that the serviceman has suffered."

Q—What step comes next?

A—Next, VA will approve the application, if everything is in order. With this, the young man or woman is ready to begin school.

Monthly Rates

Q—How much money will be paid to the parent or guardian in behalf of the young man or woman in school under the program?

A—$110 a month, if in school full-time; $90 a month, if three-quarters time, and $50 a month, if half-time.

Q—What is the monthly rate for so-called "co-op" courses?

A—The rate for "co-op" courses—alternating classroom study and related experience on the job—is $90 a month. This type of training may not be taken part-time.

Q—Is schooling allowed on less than half-time basis?

A—No payments may be made if students are attending school less than half-time.

Q—Who receives the monthly allowances—the student or his parent or guardian?

A—The parent or guardian.

Q—How are the allowances paid?

A—The monthly allowance is paid after the end of each month of school completed. But before VA can make a payment, it must receive a certification, signed both by the student and his school, stating he actually was in school during the month. Checks usually go out within 20 days after VA receives these certifications.

Q—In the case of a student aiming for a college degree, are there any conditions in which allowances may not be paid?

A—Allowances will not be paid if the student is not pursuing his course in accordance with the school's regular policies and in accordance with the law.

Q—Are there any conditions in which allowances will not be paid, if the student is taking a course that does not lead to a college degree?

A—In this case, allowances may not be paid for any absences in excess of 30 days in a 12-month period. Week ends and legal holidays do not count as absences.
